SYNOPSIS.

Clara and Gerald have been married six weeks.
So they can have a quiet holiday, Clara's sister, Gertrude Twine, has rented the cottage on the Lighthouse Road, Chumpton, as their haven of rest.

Before their departure from Bath, Clara's mother has been taken ill and Gerald sets off alone leaving Clara to follow later.

Knowing that Gertrude is a tyrant, and her husband, Harold, a timid little ass, Gerald has sent cousin Clive to stay with the Twines and keep them occupied. Clive, the gay pal of Gerald's bachelor days, promises to be a handful for the relatives.

A daily woman, Mrs. Leverett, has been engaged by Gertrude to look after the newlyweds.

The play opens with Mrs. Leverett indignantly waiting the much delayed arrival of Gerald.

ACT I Late one summer evening.

ACT II Next morning.

ACT III Two and a half hours later.

We gratefully acknowledge the assistance of Mr. Les Turton and his Staff for attending to the bookings. Also the Press for the publicity made available to the Group.

Tea and biscuits will be served during the interval between Acts II and III.
