EDWARD ALBEE'S 3 ACT PLAY.

WHOSE AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF

OCTOBER 1988

LAYCOCK STREET BICENTENNIAL COMMUNITY THEATRE.

DIRECTORS NOTE

Welcome to Wyong Drama Groups first presentation in this wonderful theatre. Firstly I must give my thanks to Gosford Musical Society for initiating this opening season and Mr Don Craig for his tireless assistance to bring this production to Laycock Street Theatre.

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" is a marvelous play cleverly written by Edward Albee. There is so much about the characters not written that it makes a fascinating analysis of each caricature for discussion.

My cast have worked very well together which is comforting as for the past three months they have been tearing into one another and the tension has been enormous. The end result has been very satisfying for all the cast and has achieved my expectations. It has often been said that you will either "love or hate" this play. Either way I'm hoping you will appreciate they play for what it is -

A classic piece of writing that never ages.

THE PLAYERS

Pollyanna Murphy

One of WDG's most established performers having many credits to her name not only on the stage but with many fine productions as Director.

The role Martha displays her unique talent to the fullest.

Adrian Adam

This will be Adrian's first performance for the group and is his debut since doing school plays.

He has a freshness and natural talent that shines through.

Brendon Duhigg

This production will be Brendon's second appearance with the group and his understanding of the role of George has again proved that his acting style is a great asset. Brendon's next project is to direct "One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest".

Ruth Jordon

One of WDG's busiest workers not only appearing on stage but also with the committee.

The part of honey shows us Ruth's ability to undertake characters roles.
